NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

WHEREAS, MARSENE JOHNSON and RUTH JOHNSON his wife, as Trustees, did execute and deliver their certain deed of trust dated the 11th day of July, 1929, to BANK OF ITALY, a corporation, as trustee, and which said deed of trust was recorded on the 5th day of September, 1929, in the County Recorder's office of the County of San Mateo, State of California, in Vol. 189 of Official Records, page 70, Records of San Mateo County, California, and which said deed of trust was executed and delivered to secure the payment of Thirty-three Hundred Fifty and no/100 ($3,350.00) Dollars, in United States gold coin, together with interest thereon according to the terms of a certain promissory note of even date with said deed of trust, and which said promissory note was executed by Marseene Johnson and Ruth Johnson, his wife, to MARY M. HULING and THOMAS R. HULING, as beneficiaries, and said Mary M. Huling and Thomas R. Huling are still the owners and holders of said promissory note and of said indebtedness; and

WHEREAS, since the execution and delivery of said deed of trust by said Trustees, Bank of Italy has been converted into a national banking association and has succeeded to all the rights, titles, interests and authorities of said Bank of Italy as Trustee, and that said Bank of Italy at the same time changed its name to Bank of Italy National Trust and Savings Association, a national banking association; that by reason thereof Bank of Italy National Trust and Savings Association is now the trustee under said deed of trust;

NOW, THEREFORE, in accordance with the terms and under the authority of said deed of trust and in pursuance of a certain notice and demand of said Mary M. Huling and Thomas R. Huling, declaring that default has been made in the payment of the sums due under and by virtue of the terms of said promissory note, to secure the payment of which said deed of trust was executed, requesting and authorizing said trustee to sell said real property for the purpose of satisfying said indebtedness of said Marseene Johnson and Ruth Johnson, his wife, as in said deed of trust and promissory note provided;

NOW, THEREFORE, said Bank of Italy National Trust and Savings Association, a national banking association, successor to Bank of Italy, a corporation, as aforesaid, hereby gives notice that default has been made in the payment of the principal and interest due from said Marseene Johnson and Ruth Johnson, his wife, to said Mary M. Huling and Thomas R. Huling on said promissory note and in the payment of the indebtedness secured by said deed of trust as aforesaid, and that on the 18th day of June, 1929, Mary M. Huling and Thomas R. Huling, the owners and holders of said promissory note, did record in the office of the County Recorder of San Mateo County, California, in Vol. 417 of Official Records, page 433, Records of San Mateo County, a notice of such default and of their intention to sell and cause to be sold the real property hereinafter described to satisfy said obligation, and that three months have elapsed since said recording of said notice, and notice is hereby given that on Tuesday, the 29th day of October, 1929, at the hour of ten o'clock A. M. of said day, at the front entrance of the Court House of San Mateo County, State of California, situated on the north side of Broadway Street, between Webster and Hamilton Streets, in the City of Redwood City, County of San Mateo, State of California, said trustee will sell at public auction to the highest bidder in gold coin of the United States, all that certain property described in said deed of trust and which property is situated, lying and being in the County of San Mateo, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to-wit:

Lot Numbered Nine (9) and Ten (10) in Block Three (3) as said lots and block are laid down, designated and delineated on the official map of the County of San Mateo, State of California, on the 24th day of June, 1907.

TERMS OF SALE: Cash, gold coin of the United States. Said Mary M. Huling and Thomas R. Huling, being the owners and holders of said promissory note and of the indebtedness secured by said deed of trust, or any other person, may purchase at said sale.

Dated: September 24, 1929.

BUREAU OF EDUCATION GIVEN ANOTHER NAME

In an apparent effort to meet in part with the demands of those who have realized the necessity of more recognition for education on the part of the Federal government and are asking that there be established a Department of Education with a Secretary in the Cabinet, the Secretary of the Interior has announced that the Bureau of Education will hereafter be known as the Office of Education.

Two reasons were given for this change. The first is the fact that the legislation which created this branch of the government styled it the Office of Education. The second is a feeling that "Office" more accurately indicates the nature of its work than does "Bureau." This was on the assumption that the latter is held to be properly associated with administration while the former better fits an agency whose purpose is research. It is doubted that this changing of a name will quell to any extent the increasing demands for a department of Education. The bit of strategy will deceive few of those who wish to see education given the national recognition that it deserves.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE OF REAL PROPERTY UNDER DEED OF TRUST.

No. 214918.

On Tuesday, the 12th day of November, 1929, at 12:00 o'clock noon, at Number 14 Montgomery Street, San Francisco, California, the undersigned will sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, in lawful money of the United States, the following described real property situated in the City of Daly City, County of San Mateo, State of California:

Portion of Lot 128 as designated on the map entitled "Map of the Property of the West End Home Loan Association, which map was filed in the office of the Recorder of the County of San Mateo, State of California, on January 25, 1905, Volume 4 of Deeds at page 415, more particularly described as:

BEGINNING at a point on the Southern line of Brunswick Street, distant thereon 95 feet Easterly from the intersection thereof with the Easterly line of Acton Street, formerly Henrietta Street, as said streets appear on the map above referred to; running thence Easterly along the Southern line of Brunswick Street 25 feet; thence Southerly parallel with the Easterly line of Acton Street 94 feet; thence Westerly parallel with the Southern line of Brunswick Street 25 feet; thence Northerly parallel with the Easterly line of Acton Street 94 feet to the place of beginning.

Said sale will be made to satisfy the obligation secured by and pursuant to the power of sale conferred in a certain deed of trust executed by ROBERT E. HASS and OLIVE S. HASS, his wife, trustees, to CALIFORNIA PACIFIC TITLE & TRUST COMPANY, a corporation, as trustee for the benefit and security of JAMES LEVAS and JULIA LEVAS, his wife, dated January 23, 1929, and recorded January 25, 1929, in the office of the County Recorder of said County of San Mateo, in Volume 393 of official records, at page 322.

Notice of a breach of said obligation and election to sell said real property was recorded in the office of said County Recorder July 11, 1929, in Volume 420 of official records, at page 324. This notice is given in compliance with the demand of said California Pacific Title & Trust Company, as Trustee.

LARGEST PIPE ORDER MADE BY P. G. & E.

Pacific Gas and Electric Company has just placed the largest single pipe order ever given on the Pacific Coast. The contract is for 55,000 tons, about 312 miles, ranging from 16 to 22 inches in diameter. This pipe is to be used for construction of the Company's second natural gas transmission line from the Kettleman Hills to the San Francisco Bay area via Richmond, and also in the construction of branches from this main line to serve Modesto, Stockton, Sacramento, Roseville, Woodland and intermediate points.

It will require about 1,700 cars to transport, and the delivered cost will be around five and one-half million dollars. The first shipment has already left the mills. Practically all rights-of-way have been secured and installation will proceed rapidly so as to give as much winter employment as possible to local labor.

The number of joints in the new pipe line will be reduced by one-fourth through the use of 40 inch lengths in place of 30 inch lengths. This is a development which has taken place since the Company's first line from the Kettleman Hills to the Bay area was constructed, and will not only reduce construction costs but give an added factor of safety. Steps will also be taken in the near future to go forward with the construction of the third unit of the Company's natural gas transmission and distribution system by means of a line across Carquinez Straits' bridge into Vallejo and thence reaching Napa, San Rafael, Petaluma, Santa Rosa and probably Healdsburg. Surveys are also under way to determine the feasibility of extending from Roseville to the Company's Marysville network, which would bring natural gas as far north as Oroville, Marysville and Chico. When completed, the Company's network of natural gas lines will, in large degree, resemble its electric transmission and distribution system. It will require the transportation of natural gas for as long a distance as 360 miles. The maximum transmission of natural gas in Southern California is 130 miles. The widespread distribution of electric power has made industrial development possible in all of the smaller communities in Northern California, and the practically universal distribution of natural gas now being undertaken by the Pacific Gas and Electric Company in this section will add still another factor in expanding the present industrial frontiers. President Hockenheimer states that the Company is not planning merely to serve natural gas to the large centers of population and industry, but is preparing to bring the benefits of this cheaper fuel to substantially the entire territory served by it. More than one hundred communities will be reached by the Company's natural gas mains within the next twelve months.

THE POLITICAL COW

Gasoline taxes have increased from an average of only 50 cents per motor vehicle in 1921, to $13 per vehicle in 1928, according to the American Petroleum Institute. It is forecast that the average may be as high as $17 this year.

Every state now taxes gasoline, with rates ranging from two to six cents per gallon. Thirty states collect four cents or more and seven states have a five-cent levy. The interest of the press of the nation has taken in the war against exorbitant gas taxes is one of the most hopeful signs for future relief. A survey of editorial comment indicates that most editors favor a reasonable gasoline tax, with revenue efficiently and honestly expended for highway building and maintenance. It is likewise the editorial belief that high gas rates, diversion of revenue to other purpose than road work and waste and inefficiency in spending the money, should not be tolerated.

To levy a tax against such a commodity as gasoline and use the proceeds for general purposes is discriminatory legislation of the most obnoxious type. And the tendency, noted by the newspapers of many states, of wasting gas tax money in building unsuitable and "political" highways, amounts to theft of the motorist's property.

The general public must co-operate if the gas tax menace is to be effectively opposed. Already rumbles are heard from several states as lawmakers plan to further boost taxes during the coming year. Gasoline is in danger of becoming a political cow, to be milked whenever money is needed for some purpose or other.

EFFICIENCY IN LAW

The Old Bailey in London is the most famous criminal court in the world. And in the opinion of James M. Hepburn who writes on it in the Baltimore Sun, it is likewise the most efficient.

There are many things in the letter of English law that would not appeal to liberty-loving Americans. But in its administration, and the swiftness with which justice is meted to offenders, it must enlist admiration.

Pettyfogging technicalities, delays, tricks, mob-sentiment either for or against an accused, are not tolerated. Common sense and wisdom dominate the entire proceedings, and decisions come quickly and fairly.

This country does not need more laws further restricting law-abiding citizens in the hope of preventing crime, because criminals obey no laws. We need less legislation, better enforcement of existing laws, surer punishment and scientific study of conditions which produce crime and a program for correcting such conditions.

Will Rodgers commends Mr. Shearer for suspending his investigation of the United States Senate during the visit of Premier MacDonald.

Algernon Valentine of London has taught 500 sparrows in Hyde Park to beg for food, hover in the air when ordered, and feed by "numbers."

HIGH DEATH RATE AMONG THE CIVIL WAR VETERANS

Civil war veterans on the Federal pension rolls are dying at the rate of over 5,000 per month, Lieutenant Colonel W. L. Hazard, of the Federal Bureau of Pensions stated recently, in explanation of the latest report issued. Although this list, which was compiled September 30, shows 57,483 Civil war veterans now drawing pensions, in fact over 2,000 more have died since it was prepared, Colonel Hazard added. It was predicted in the Bureau of Pensions that within a year the number of pensioners in this class will be reduced to insignificance, since most of the survivors are 85 years of age and older.

In sharp contrast to the Civil war veterans drawing pensions are the widows, who number 178,659. The government is also paying pensions to 714 widows of veterans of the Mexican war and 10 widows of those of the War of 1812. The last survivor of the Mexican war on the pension list died in September.

SYNOPSIS

Sam Stanley, wealthy owner of the Desert Moon ranch, informs his housekeeper, Mary Magin, who tells the story, that his former wife's twin daughters, Danielle and Gabrielle, are coming to the ranch to live, their mother being dead and their father, Daniel Canneziano, who had been the cause of Sam's divorcing his wife, in the penitentiary. Sam has adopted a boy, John, now grown to manhood, and a girl, Martha, twenty-one, physically healthy but weak-minded. Mrs. Ollie Ricker, Martha's nurse, lives with them. Hubert Hand, a wanderer, and Chadwick Caulfield, John's wartime buddy, who is an expert ventriloquist, are the other members of the household. The girls arrive, Mrs. Magin has an uneasy feeling that there is a sinister motive in the twins' presence at the ranch, and her suspicions are strengthened by the girls' mysterious prowling around the place. John becomes engaged to Danielle. Caulfield shows a pronounced liking for Gabrielle. Gabrielle seeks to win John from her sister, and John, disgusted, tells Mrs. Magin the girl is a trouble maker and he would like to choke her. Gabrielle's actions when she receives a letter from France arouse and mystify Mrs. Magin.

CHAPTER V

An Insight

That evening, the second of July, the two girls came down, late, together. Danny was paler than usual, and her face had a drawn, hurt look, which she explained by saying that she had a severe headache. Gaby was slyer than gay.

I kept watching her, trying to catch her face in repose, to see if any trace remained of that dreadful expression I had seen to the afternoon. Her face, nor one bit of her, was in repose for a minute from the time she came downstairs until she went upstairs again, after twelve o'clock that night.

She put "La Paloma" on the phonograph, and did a Spanish dance, clicking her heels and snapping her fingers until they sounded like firecrackers. She did an Egyptian dance, slinking about, and contortioning. It wasn't decent.

Mrs. Ricker was doing some tatting. As I watched her, I decided that, ears or no ears, she was not the woman I had heard talking, that afternoon, up in the cabin. Hubert Hand had said to that woman that she had attempted murder. She could not have been Mrs. Ricker; not our Mrs. Ricker, the thin, silent woman who had lived so decently with us for so long. Those tight, wrinkled lips had never said, "I would kill her, and you too." John had never said "I shivered. Wicked thoughts and wicked words breed wicked actions, and I knew it then as now."

Martha came crying to Mrs. Ricker. "Gaby hurt Chad," she said. "I wish she would die. We could make her a nice funeral."

Mrs. Ricker's fingers darted faster, back and forth.

Danny spoke, from the davenport. "You shouldn't talk like that, Martha. Gaby, it is wrong."

Her voice sounded as if it ached. She looked, lying in a huddle over there, as miserable as I felt. I was drawn to her. I went and sat beside her.

"Could I do anything for your head ache?" I asked. "Get you some aspirin, maybe."

"No, thank you, Mary." There was so much gratitude in her big dark eyes for nothing but common decency on my part, that I felt downright ashamed of myself.

"Danny," I said, straight out, never caring much about mincing words, "I know that something is troubling you. Why don't you tell John, or Sam, or even me about it? Just tell us the truth. We'd all go far to help you, if we could."

Her eyes filled with tears. "Bless your heart, Mary," she said. "Bless all of your hearts. You are all so good here."

I was enough annoyed with John for coming up right then, to have slapped him. I answered his question for Danny.

"There is plenty you could do for her," I said. "You could shut off that screeching radio, for one thing."

Danny wouldn't hear to John's stop ping the racket. Every one was having such a good time. Bed was the place for her. She couldn't hear any noise in her room, with the door shut. And off she went.

I know now that she would not have told me anything that could have helped matters. But I did not know it then, and I was sorely disappointed. For those sudden tears in her eyes, and her voice when she had said, "bless your heart," had convinced me that there was sincerity behind them, and honesty, and good.

In the black days that followed, when all of us were living in the dark shadows of doubts, and confusions, and fears and suspicions, I was thankful, time and again, for those certainties, for that one feeling but sure insight into Danny's soul.

The morning of the third was biting hot, with that stinging, piercing heat that we have, when we have heat at all, in this high altitude. The sixty-mile trip across the deserts to Telko, on a day like this, would be exactly the same as a sixty-mile trip through an oven at the right heat for a roast of beef.

Nevertheless, before seven o'clock that morning, every man-jack of a puncher on the place, with all of his trimmings and trappings, including wives, squaws, papooses, children and firearms, had set off in flivvers or on horseback, bound for the celebration, leaving the place hole-empty, as Sam said, when he came into my kitchen with a gallon of cream from the dairy.

He pulled the stool out from under the table, perched on it, and remarked, "I'm not going to be surprised if we have another visitor, one of these days. The warden of the penitentiary told me that Daniel Canneziano was to be released on the morning of the fourth of July."

I dropped into a chair, feeling sort of weakened from the news.

"You mark my words," I said, "all these queer actions around here have something to do with that man's release. I know what I'd do about Canneziano, if he shows up here."

"Yes, I know. But he is Danny's father, and Danny is going to marry John. After all, money is not much good unless you take it to market. If I could come to a decent agreement with the fellow—and if he'd take that Gaby with him. I'm dead certain that her hanging around here isn't going to contribute any to John's and Danny's married life."

"What do you mean by that, Sam?" Gaby asked the question, walking right into the kitchen. I was all taken aback; but Sam didn't seem to be.

"Eavesdroppers, my girl," he said, "hear no good of themselves. I mean that I don't think any girl who wanted to act right would treat her sister's betrothed as you treat John."

"You," she said, very slowly, to make insult baste each word, "are a d-d old fool, Sam Stanley."

I shook in my shoes. I had not dreamed that there was a living human being who would dare say that, in that tone of voice, to Sam.

He stood up. He put his hands on her shoulders, gently, though, and turned her around.

"You are a bad, wayward girl," he said. "March out of here, now, and get your manners mended before I see you again."

He sobered even her, for a minute. She walked to the door, without another word. There, she whirled around like a crazy thing, and I declare to goodness, I don't know what she said. It was the sort of talking I had never heard in my life; my ears were not enough accustomed to the words to take in their meanings.

But one thing that she kept screaming, screaming so loudly that she could be heard all over the place, was that Sam had threatened her once too often. Sam stood there, paralyzed, I think, as I was, for perhaps a couple of minutes, before he turned and walked off, into the backyard.

Hubert Hand came rushing in. Gaby threw her arms around his neck, and kept on with the screaming and sobbing. Chad came in through the pantry. Hubert Hand led Gaby into the dining room, and through it into the living room.

"What in God's name happened?" Chad said to me.

"Chad," I said, "Gabrielle Canneziano has lost her mind. She is insane. His face went white as lard. 'I don't believe it.'"

"Either that," I said, "or else she is the wickedest, the—"

"Stop it," he shouted at me. "You, nor anyone, can talk to me like that about the girl I love. None of you understands her, nor tries to. She is in some sort of trouble—terrible trouble. Anyone can see that. I'd give my soul to help her—To serve her—"

"If you are so crazy about serving her," I said, "you might go into the dining room and set the table, and help me serve her, and the rest of you, some breakfast."

He went into the yard. Like a lot of men, I thought, who went to give their souls and so on to women, he didn't care to be bothered with smaller details, such as feeding them. I wronged him. Whether or not a man has the giving of his soul, in his own hands, I do not know. A man can give his life. That is what Chad gave.

After dinner John surprised us all by saying that he was going to take the sedan and drive down to Rattall for the mail.

I suspected, right then, that he was up to something. He could not fool me into thinking that he would take a fifty-mile trip—twenty-five miles each way—through the desert heat for no other reason than to get the mail. When Danny seemed hurt and troubled about him going, and when he went riding right off, anyway, I decided that Sam must have sent him, expecting some word concerning Canneziano. I was wrong.

It was too tarnation hot to do anything but try to keep cool. I stacked the dinner dishes, to wash in the evening, and joined the others, sitting around in the living room with the electric fans going full blast.

I was expecting, every minute, to see Gaby break out again. She didn't. She yawned around, and fussed about, and then went and sat beside Danny, who was looking at the pictures in a magazine, and put her arm around her, and petted her up a little—a most unusual performance for her.

When Chad, who had been monkeying with the radio, got a rip-roaring patriotic program from Salt Lake, the two girls went upstairs together.

A few minutes later I had an errand upstairs—a real one, I wouldn't have taken myself up in that heat to satisfy my curiosity—so, out of habit,

She Whirled Around Like a Crazy Thing.

I stopped at Gaby's door to listen. I heard the girls giggling in there; and, knowing no great harm is afoot when girls giggle, I went on, got my scrap of pongee silk to mend Sam's shirt, and came downstairs again.

Sam and Hubert Hand were deep in a chess game. Mrs. Ricker was tatting. Chad and Martha were playing dots and crosses.

The radio program had just that minute stopped. Martha, who when she didn't forget it, usually fed her rabbits about that time of day, had gone out to do it. Gaby came downstairs, humming a tune.

She had on the tomato soup colored wrap that she had worn on the train, and the hat to match the wrap. She was carrying a beaded bag. She never dressed up like that, to go walking around the place; a wrap, even such a light one, in the heat of that day, was downright ridiculous.

Chad said, "All dressed up and no place to go?"

She tossed her head at him, and hurried straight down the room and out through the glass doors. Chad followed her. They stopped together on the porch. She stood with her back to me. Chad faced me. In a minute, I saw his mouth bend up into a grin of bliss. Nothing would have surprised me more. For this reason.

As that girl had walked through the room, I had seen that she walked in mortal fear. In spite of her humming, in spite of her attempted swagger, fear was in her widened eyes, in her drawn-in chin, in the contraction of her shoulders. Wherever it was that she was going, she was afraid to go. But where could she go? John had the sedan. Except for the trucks, which she couldn't drive, and her pony—she surely would not be dressed like that to ride horseback—there was no way for her to get off the place. It must be, then, that someone was coming to the place, and that she was going out alone to meet them. Who? Canneziano? Not unless Sam had been mistaken about the time when he was to be released from prison. Usually, when people think at all, they think quickly. All this had gone through my mind while she had walked the forty feet to the door.

Gaby and Chad stood on the porch talking for two or three minutes—a very short time, at any rate. Then she went down the steps, and Chad, still smiling, came back into the room.

As he came in, Danny called down from the top of the stairway. "Gaby—oh, Gaby?"

She knows where Gaby is going, and whom she is going to meet, and she, too, is afraid, I decided, because of the queer, strained quality of her voice.

"Gaby has gone out," I called, in answer. And then, since I could still see Gaby, walking down the path. "Do you want her, Danny? We could fetch her back."

"No," Danny answered. "Don't bother. I'll come down."

I had to reverse my first decision about Danny's being frightened. At least, her voice was natural enough, now; I fancied, perhaps, a note of relief in it.

It couldn't have been more than ten minutes after that, when Martha came running into the house, laughing and dancing, and wearing the gold bracelet with the monkey clasp. Gaby, she said, had given it to her, just now, out by the rabbit hutch.

While we were all still exclaiming over the monkey, and praising it up, to please Martha, Danny came downstairs. She said her headache was worse again, and she drew the curtains at the windows beside the big davenport, to ease the glare of the light, before she curled up on it.

"Do you know where Gaby was going this afternoon?" I asked her.

"For a little walk."

"Why did she wear her wrap, and carry her beaded bag, just to go out for a little walk?"

Danny sat up straight, pressing her hands to her aching head. "Her wrap—today? Her beaded bag? Surely not."

"That's just what she did. Didn't you see her before she left?"

"I was lying down. She came to my door and said that she was going for a walk, and asked me if I cared to go with her. I said that my headache was too severe. She went into her room, and from there downstairs. I felt guilty about refusing to go with her, after our talk. I thought that I should; so I called after her. But, when you said she had gone, I was afraid she would be annoyed at being called back. I had gotten up; so, since John will surely be home before long, now, I came down. I can't understand her wearing a wrap. It is so silly, on a day like this."

It sounded all right, but I was not quite satisfied.

"Gaby was frightened," I said. "Something was the matter with her when she walked through this room. I'll go bond that, wherever it was she was going, she was afraid to go."

"Mary, it must be that you are imagining this. Unless—Oh, it couldn't be that Gaby has not told me the truth about—about anything. I am sure she was honest with me this afternoon. I am sure—And yet—Dear me, I wonder where she went for her walk?"

"Gaby told me," Martha piped up, from where she was sitting on the arm of Sam's chair, "that she was going to the cabin. She was in a big hurry. She ran."

"Up toward the cabin?" Danny questioned, though we all knew we could not put a mile of trust in anything Martha said.

"Yes, Chad loves me better'n he loves her. Don't you, Chad?"

"You are positive," Danny insisted, and I couldn't see why, for a minute. "that she went to the cabin, or toward it? Are you sure that she didn't go around the house toward the road?"

When she asked about the road, her meaning was clear to me. Danny was afraid that Gaby had gone to meet John, who should have been back from Rattall before this.

"She told me she was going to the cabin," Martha answered. "She ran. She was in a hurry."

Danny stood up. "I think I shall walk up to the cabin and see whether I can find her. You'll come with me, Mary?"

I said not in the heat. She asked Mrs. Ricker to go with her. Mrs. Ricker refused. I wondered why, when neither of us would go, Danny did not go by herself. She did not. Had she, perhaps, guessed at the cause of Gaby's fear? Did she share it? Was she afraid to go to the cabin alone?

to supper. Danny was too nervous to touch a bit of food. She kept looking out of the windows, and at her watch, and out of the windows again.

"Don't worry, Danny," Sam said. "John has had tire trouble, on account of the heat. They'll come riding up the road any minute now."

"They?" she questioned.

"Gaby toddled up and went down the road to meet John, didn't she?"

"No," Danny's voice curled into a wail. "No, Uncle Sam, she didn't. Martha saw her going to the cabin. Didn't you, Martha?"

"Martha," Mrs. Ricker astonished us all by saying, "doesn't know where Gaby went. She knows only where Gaby told her she was going."

"But why should Gaby tell her a fib about it?" Danny asked.

"And why," I questioned, "should Gaby go around the house to get to the road, instead of going right out the front way?"

Again Mrs. Rucker shocked us by speaking. "She would not go out the front way, if she wanted to keep her trip to the road a secret."

"Mrs. Ricker," Danny's voice trembled, "What are you hinting? What is it that you know?"

"I know," said Mrs. Ricker, "that there is not a man living who is not as false as sin."

Sam growled, "Come down to facts, Mrs. Ricker, if you have any."

"I have no facts," she said, "except, that right after dinner today John and Gaby had a private conversation, and he decided, very suddenly, to go for the mail."

At that minute we heard a sound for sore ears—the car coming up the driveway. Danny jumped up and ran to look out of the living room window. "He has gone all the way around to the kitchen," she said, when she came back.

She ran into the kitchen. She and John came to the door of the butler's pantry. John was gray with dust. His brows were knitted, as they are when ever he is troubled about anything.

"He hasn't seen Gaby," Danny announced, with an exultation that showed plainly what she had been most anxious about. "He brought up the rock salt. That's why he drove to the kitchen. Come and see, Mary?"

"I'd rather see you two come and eat your suppers," I said.

"Good night!" John answered. "I've got to go and get rid of a few tons of dirt before I can come to the table."

"No," Danny insisted. "Never mind the dirt, dear. Supper is all cold now. Please come and eat."

John patted her on the shoulder, and smiled at her, and, manlike, did as he pleased. He went through the kitchen and upstairs the back way. Danny called after him, asking him to hurry. He didn't.

When he finally did come, all slicked up, and bathed and shaved, he said it was too hot to eat, and would have nothing but some ice cream.

Sam asked him what had kept him so long, on the trip. John said tire trouble; and that he had met Leo Suile, two miles this side of Rattall, with his diver broken down. John had stopped to help him, and, at last, had been forced to tow him the six miles north to his place.

John has a way, when he is worried, of shutting and opening his eyes, and of tossing his head back and to the side with a quick little jerk, as if he were trying to get shed of something that was in it. All the while he was eating and talking, he kept doing this. I asked him whether his head ached.

"No," he said. "But I think I'm sort of loco from being out in the sun."

"Gaby kept you waiting quite a while?" Hubert Hand stated and asked.

"What do you mean?" John questioned.

"Waited for her down the road, didn't you, and took her to Rattall in time to catch the train for Reno, or Frisco?"

I thought John would fly into a temper. He has a handy temper. But he only looked around at all of us, with a bewildered expression, and, "Say, are you fellows trying to put something over on me, or what?" he asked.

Injured Miner Is Saved by Terrier

Salt Lake City, Utah.—"Doc" Buhl of Salt Lake, Idaho, was prospecting recently when his foot was crushed by a rolling stone.

"Doc" tied a note on the neck of his diminutive fox terrier and sent her out for aid. She failed at first to grasp what was expected of her and returned at noon with the note still intact.

"Doc" fed her and sent her out again, but she returned in a few hours. This time the prospector gave her a good scolding instead of food, and ordered her out of camp for the third time.

The dog reached the home of a friend in Salt Lake in the evening and aid was immediately dispatched.

KIDNAPED CHILD FORGETS PARENTS

Taken to Europe Months Ago by Former Boarder.

New York.—Johnnie Cap, Jr., four-year-old New Haven boy who had been kidnapped last April and taken to Europe by a boarder in the home of his parents who had developed a deep attachment for the youngster, came home recently.

In the months of his absence little Johnnie had seemingly lost all account of his mother and father, had even taken to speaking in German and was tearfully disinclined to have anything to do with them when the ship which brought him home—the Estonia, of the Baltic-American line—docked at her pier in Brooklyn. The only interest the boy appeared to have was in the ship's nurse, Stefania Werchowodka, who had the care of him during his home voyage from Danzig.

The boy was taken from his home last April by Joseph Urban, the lodger, and when his disappearance was announced an appeal was made to Governor Trumbull of Connecticut, who was told that Urban had taken the boy to Danzig.

After arrangements had been made for the return of little John to the Estonia, he was placed in the care of Nurse Werchowodka. His plight being known, he became the especial pet of the commander and of the chief steward, and was permitted practically the run of the vessel. He could go on the bridge, into the captain's cabin, wherever he wished.

Word of his homecoming had been sent to his parents and they were at the pier. The instant Mrs

WHAT WOULD BRYANT SAY?

"To him who in love of nature holds communion with her visible forms, she speaks a various language." So wrote William Cullen Bryant in his famed poem "Thanatopsis," published in 1817. Cargill, the cartoonist, takes this quotation as the caption for a recent cartoon depicting a motorist wending his way through a maze of billboards, which also "speak a various language," ranging from praise of El Panko cigars to an invitation to patronize the Rowdie Dow dance hall.

In terms more eloquent than pages of text, the cartoonist characterizes the present disgraceful marring of natural scenery by blatant and offensive billboards, which not only obscure the beauties of nature, but are in many instances a menace to traffic.

What would Bryant, poet and nature lover, say if he were to come back seeking inspiration for a modern "Thanatopsis?"

New York janitor flatly refused to fire the cook at his wife's request. Most janitors are too tender-hearted to even fire a furnace.

AMERICANS ALL

An interesting little study in names is presented by the list of nine New York public school boys who were recently awarded Pulitzer four-year scholarships at Columbia University, they being chosen from a field of 90 of the brightest in the metropolis.

Their names, in the order of the grades made in the competitive examination, are as follows: Herman Kremer, Helmut Schulz, Thomas Jonaitis, Andrew Chiappe, Jerome O'Neil, Fred Tonetti, Hippocrates Apostle, John Morrisroe and Milton Black. It will appear that German Greek and Italian names predominate, and in fact only two of the boys were born in the United States. Among their fathers are a cook, a waiter, a construction laborer, a milkman and a janitor.

But in spite of foreign names and foreign birth, these boys are now Americans all, with an opportunity to rise to whatever heights their ability and energy can carry them.

There is consolation in the thought that if Congress spends all its time in investigations there will be no chance to pass any more laws.

THE PREMIER'S VISIT

Practically everyone in the United States has observed with satisfaction the cordiality which has marked the recent visit of Premier MacDonald of England to President Hoover, and all hope that the result of their conferences may be a further important contribution to world peace.

In the present state of world affairs, however, it is just as well not to expect too much all at once. There are many obstacles in the way of a real disarmament program, and while every encouragement should be given to the efforts being made to overcome them, it is not wise to take too much for granted.

Much anxiety is felt concerning the outcome of the forthcoming peace conference next January, in which the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan are expected to participate. Whether the tentative agreements made between President Hoover and Premier MacDonald will tend to promote the success of that conference remains to be seen.

France and Italy appear to be apprehensive that the United States and England may be planning an alliance, which is denied by both. It is encouraging that peace parleys are to be continued, and there is reason to hope that war may be made less probable in the future as a result. But the millennium is not here yet, and it will take infinite good will, tact and patience to bring about the security and concord which the people of all nations so earnestly desire.

HE SAVED THE MAIL

More exciting than a movie thriller was a recent scene on Pea River in Alabama, in which a small boy, Paul Rowe Brunson, was the star, and a raging stream, a floating bridge, a pouch of mail and a boat constituted the stage setting and accessories.

The boy was assisting in transferring mail across the river over a temporary bridge which flood waters had rendered unsafe for vehicles. Suddenly a section of the bridge gave way and plunged into the river, carrying Paul and a pouch of mail with it. At the first dive the boy was carried entirely under the water for several seconds, but when the section of bridge, now become a raft, rose to the surface he came up with it, still clutching the precious mail.

Again and again he was swept under the swirling waters, but held on with one hand, keeping the mail bag in the other. For a time those on shore were powerless to help, but soon a boat was obtained and a chase after the runaway bridge began. Finally the boatman overtook it and brought the boy and his mail pouch safely ashore.

Thus another boy hero was made. And it is a pity that no cameraman was on the bank to film his brave exploit.

EXPERT LAUDS WEEKLIES

One of the highest compliments ever paid the weekly newspapers of the country comes from James O'Shaughnessy, formerly executive secretary of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, who declared in a Boston address that "country weeklies are the cornerstone of American Journalism."

"The weekly in a small town talks to its readers more intimately and confidentially than any other medium," Mr. O'Shaughnessy said.

Such a tribute from one of America's leading advertising authorities is gratifying to the thousands of country publishers, many of whom are struggling under adverse conditions to faithfully serve their communities.

It should also impress town and small city merchants with the fact that the weekly newspaper offers the most effective medium for placing his store message before the people upon whom he must depend for his business existence.

DESTROYED DOLLARS

Dollars, represented by property, die when fire destroys. Whether the blaze consumes a great tract of forest or a one-car garage, it means a permanent economic loss. The money invested can never again work to produce profits. It is definitely and literally dead.

This is a direct loss. The indirect loss, in waste of time and unemployment, may be even greater. The tax that would be paid on a destroyed building is reassessed against other citizens. The rates charged by insurance companies are determined by the aggregate fire loss. Every citizen in the community pays for every fire. Something that contributed its share, large or small, to progress and social or industrial development, has been totally destroyed. Instead of an asset, it becomes an expense.

These are simple matters, but they are seldom realized. A few minutes' thought must bring home to every citizen the appalling danger of our gigantic annual fire waste. Thrift, industry, saving, hope—fire destroys them in the flickering of an eye. And the bill is charged against the national pocketbook.

Authorities of Moscow will use poison gas as one of the means to be employed in an effort to rid the city of rats, which cause damage of $5,000,000 a year.

MUSCLE SHOALS LINE-UP

At the regular session of Congress which begins in December the old Muscle Shoals problem will be brought up once more, and the proponents of pending bills are lining up for the fray.

The hope is expressed that President Hoover may take an active interest in the settlement of the matter, which has been before Congress since 1921, when the Ford offer was made. Therefore, those most interested in the question are awaiting his expression concerning it in his forthcoming annual message.

The two principal proposals now pending are the Norris plan for government experimental operation of the nitrate plants, and the Wright bill, which embodies the bid of the American Cyanamid Company.

It is freely predicted that President Hoover would veto any government operation measure, owing to his often expressed opposition to government competition with private industry.

The Cyanamid bid is strongly advocated by the American Farm Bureau Federation, by Chairman Huston of the Republican national committee and by civic bodies in Alabama and Tennessee in the section surrounding Muscle Shoals, as well as by important leaders in Congress, who believe that it offers the best solution of the problem.

However, it is difficult to intelligently predict what action, if any, will be taken by Congress and the President, except to say that any government operation measure, even if passed by Congress, would be likely to face another executive veto.

A HEALTHY CONDITION

While some branches of American business and industry have suffered a temporary set-back here and there during the recent period of remarkable activity, conditions on the whole continue sound and highly encouraging. A falling off in any one industry usually has been closely followed by a substantial recovery.

This is true of building construction, which during the early part of the present year showed a decline from that of 1928. However, according to a nationwide survey recently reported by A. E. Dickinson, president of the Indiana Limestone company, a marked improvement has been noticed in the past few weeks.

While residential building operations are still somewhat below those of last year, a gain is seen in the construction of commercial, industrial, educational and institutional types of buildings, with increasing activity in sight for the immediate future. In August, the last month for which figures are available, approximately $565,000,000 was spent for new construction.

Reports of activities in other basic industries show a healthy condition, and all indications lead to the conclusion that this condition will probably continue for a long period.

FLOWER SHOW BEST IN COUNTY'S HISTORY

San Mateo county's flower show came to a close in a blaze of glory last Sunday night with the distribution of final awards to the prize winners. The closing ceremonies followed a busy day during which the show entertained Governor C. C. Young, Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco, Congressman Richard Welch, Supervisor Frank Havenner and a large group of other notables. The governor and his party came to San Mateo following the ceremonies of the opening of the Bayshore boulevard. With the party came the San Francisco municipal band, which Mayor Rolph himself led in one number after donning the bandmaster's cap.

For the three days and evenings during which the show has been open, the Junior college gymnasium was thronged with flower lovers from all over the state. More than 5,000 visited the gymnasium. Experts hailed the exhibit as the most astonishing variety of bloom and leaf ever assembled under one roof. In addition to the show within, an open air exhibit displayed nursery stock, trees and shrubs of every kind.

NATURAL GAS SYSTEM WILL SERVE 2,000,000

An interconnected system to carry natural gas from Roseville on the north to San Diego on the south and serve approximately 2,000,000 consumers in California, was visioned by Claude C. Brown, gas administrator of the State Railroad Commission, in a report issued the early part of the week.

Brown recounted all natural gas lines in operation, under construction or proposed in applications before the commission which are expected to be granted.

He pointed out that the second natural gas line from Kettleman Hills to Richmond will be completed in April or May, 1930, and will carry an ample supply for Modesto, Oakland, Stockton, Lodi, Antioch, Vallejo, Napa, Marin and Sonoma counties.

Application to build another line from Huntington Beach to San Diego, filed by the Southern California Gas Co., is likely to be approved and will complete the inter-connected system of more than 600 pipe line miles.

THREE INJURED IN CRASH

As the result of divided authority at the steering wheel, three persons were injured, two critically, early Sunday morning on the old Pedro road, near Colma. The injured are Miss Freda Gillis, of 1752 Washington street, San Francisco, possible fracture of the spine; Harry Clements, 34 Turk street, San Francisco, possible fracture of the spine, and Earl W. Moore of 504 Valencia street, San Francisco, severe cuts and bruises.

Moore who was driving, told police that either Clements or Miss Gillis tried to take the steering wheel causing him to lose control of the car.

Don't forget the time, place and date—a whist and dance to be given for the benefit of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, N. D. G. W., by members of the drill team on Wednesday evening, November 20, at the Masonic Hall, Daly City. The affair will be in charge of Miss Audrey Diamond, drill major, and Miss Margie O'Connor, assisted by members of the parlor and drill team. The young ladies are working hard to make this affair a success. The game will start promptly at 8:30 o'clock, and immediately following the game, dancing will be enjoyed. A good time is assured all who attend.

Mrs. Gertrude Gehring and Mrs. Lillian Landini represented Hillcrest Circle, A. O. D., at the meeting of social and educational center at Druid's Temple on Monday evening. The Druids of California have undertaken a project of education in the Arts, Music and physical training. The older members have and do admit that the youth of today must be kept in action in the right way, so hence this great work is going to be one of the main issues of the order for their members.

EXTRAORDINARY ATTRACTIONS AT THE DALY CITY THEATRE

Tom Mix, famous cowboy of the screen, and his equally famous horse, Tony, will be the feature attraction at the Daly City Theatre tomorrow in a first run showing of "King Cowboy." Second on the feature attractions will be Lois Moran and Edmund Lowe in "Making the Grade." On the same bill there will be shown episode seven of the serial "Fighting for Fame."

For Sunday, Snooky White and his players will present a big surprise musical specialty act, together with the screening of "The Spieler," a big fun film with Renee Adoree, Alan Hale, Fred Kohler and Clyde Cook in the leading roles. Episode eight of "Fighting for Fame" will be on the same bill.

Monday night is Silver Nite, and will bring Louise Dresser, June Collyer and Allan Lane to the screen in "Not Quite Decent."

For Tuesday the Daly City Theatre has booked "The Wolf Song," with Gary Cooper and Lupe Valez in the leading roles.

Wednesday night will be Double Bill Night, and the Daly City will present Bob Steele in "Lightning Speed," together with Douglas Fairbanks, Marceline Day and Henry B. Walthall in "The Jazz Age," a big pep picture that rivals for popularity the now famous "Dancing Dackers."

For Thursday, Willard Mack will present his own "The Voice of the City," by and with himself, together with Robert Ames and Sylvia Field. Sam and his Country Store will be on the bill for Friday.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

The Stork beat the Grim Reaper at San Jose during September, there being 55 births and 44 deaths, according to the report of Dr. H. C. Brown, health officer.

Three gold bricks, valued at $18,500, it is announced, have been shipped to the San Francisco mint in the last few days, result of a cleanup following a rich strike in the old Sugarman Mine, two miles from Sonoma. A crew of twelve men is employed in sinking the shaft.

Title to the Gwin Mine at San Andreas has been passed by Jeffrey Schwelzer to the Gwin Development Company, which plans to reopen the mine. The Gwin holdings are among the most productive in Calaveras county although idle for several years.

The Granite Construction Company of Watsonville, has been awarded a contract for the resurfacing of spots on the San Juan grade, a 17-mile stretch on the present Coast Highway between San Juan and Salinas. Crews are now working on the summit, and one-way conditions prevail for a short distance.

San Luis Obispo county's largest tax charge, $1,638,665, was certified to Richard Leland, tax collector, by the county auditor at San Luis Obispo. The bulk of the increase of $193,233 is due to the large number of public improvements put in during the last year under county assessment district plan, with the interest and payments on principal collected by the county. Only $30,000 was due to the increase in the county tax rate. The assessed valuation of the county is $36,954,240.

Yreka Railroad Company applied to International Commerce Commission for authority to issue and sell 26,000 shares of its capital stock at $25 a share which will increase its capitalization to $750,000 and furnish funds to make necessary surveys incident to the proposed extension of its line from Yreka City to Etna, Calif.

Heads of the Reseda Tile Company have announced that work will begin immediately on the construction of additional factory space in connection with the present plant there. Officials stated the work is necessary because of the increased demand for clay and brick products in Southern California. For some time the Reseda district has been the center of tile and brick production in San Fernando Valley.

A fight to the finish has been launched against coyotes in Tehama county by the board of supervisors. J. C. Gilliam, state coyote trapper, will employ three assistants, at salaries of $125 per month, and bounty payments of $10 to individuals are offered.

Plans for a county-owned golf course were presented to the San Mateo county board of supervisors and endorsed by that body. The plan, as outlined by Supervisor Rosalie M. Brown of San Mateo, would be to use acreage adjacent to the county relief farm for the proposed golf course. This acreage is several miles west of San Mateo.

Postmaster J. M. Cremin announces that the postoffice department has granted the request of the South of Fourth Street Association to establish a branch office at Marysville before the next holiday season. The substitution will be located in the vicinity of Second and D streets. The principal business, aside from accommodating the holiday rush, will be the sale of stamps and issuance of money orders.

Hundreds of trout are dying in the Vallejo Lake, located twelve miles east of Napa in the mountains, and which is a source of water supply for the City of Vallejo. The exact cause of the death of the fish has not been determined, but local chemists are investigating to determine if a large quantity of bluestone, containing the poisonous copper sulphate, which is used for the purification of the water, is to blame. A slight overdose of this chemical, it was pointed out, would undoubtedly prove fatal to the fish. The Vallejo Lake, besides being a water supply for Vallejo, is a popular fishing ground for sportsmen of this section.

Considerable activity is being shown at the old Twin Quarts mining claims taken over a short time ago from Leonard Foote of Indian Valley by L. F. Lorens of Los Angeles. The property is located about eight miles north of Camptonville near Snowden Hill Mine, and will probably soon be renamed Thunder Mountain. A new tunnel has been started and considerable rock has been taken out for milling. Lorens has installed a new compressor, and a large gas engine power plant. He is now busily engaged taking lumber to the ground and erecting a boarding and bunk house and other necessary buildings. The rock runs a good value and prospects are good for the development of a paying property.

Policies of retrenchment in public school finance, involving unionization and consolidation of districts are to be advocated for the 1929-30 terms by Vieri E. Kersey, superintendent of public instruction. Centralization of control in public schools is seen by Kersey as one of the leading factors in cutting down the costs of education in the state. Wherever population and conditions will permit, unionization of elementary and secondary districts is to be recommended. The number of unemployed teachers in California is reported as less than at any time in the last five years.

Sequoia and General Grant National Parks had only eight small fires during the season just closed, aggregating only 1.1 acres of burned over ground. Last year the parks had twelve fires, which burned 919 acres. The season was one of the smallest in fire damage in years of the park.

With $150,000 already spent for geophysical surveys in the Kerman District and approximately $20,000 a month being paid out in rentals, five major oil companies have at least 80,000 acres of land under lease in the area.

The Yolo county supervisors have set November 4th for the opening of bids for the $51,000 school bonds, voted by the Woodland district last month. In the past bonds of the Woodland district have brought high premium and it is expected there will be considerable bidding on the certificates.

Speeding plans for improvement in the congested traffic situation in Marin county, the State Department of Public Works announced opening of bids for grading and paving 1.8 miles between Gallinas Creek and San Rafael. Granfield, Farrar & Carlin, San Francisco contractors, were low bidders with an offer of $133,231.75.

Residents of Ross and Kentfield are waging a battle before the State Railroad Commission in an effort to keep the Northwestern Pacific Railroad from removing the station agents at those points. Figures show that the company has been deriving a profit from both of these stations, according to George Harlan, attorney for the protestants.

Autos and trucks will be rolling over the new Freeport bridge by November 1, Sacramento and Yolo county engineers announced. While it would be possible to complete the $250,000 bridge before that time, the road from Clarksburg three miles to the span will not be ready until late. A gala celebration is planned for the opening.

Considered as the first step by the Pacific Gas and Electric Company to introduce natural gas into their mains in Yuba county from a supply in the southern part of the state, that concern filed with the board of supervisors a petition for a franchise and also a form of resolution through which the supervisors may formally ask for bids on the proposed rights. No action was taken by the board other than to order both documents filed.

Consolidation of the Hawthorne Mines, Incorporated, in the Lucky Boy Consolidated Mines Company was approved by stockholders at a meeting held in Hawthorne. The Lucky Boy Consolidated acquires all assets of the Hawthorne Mines, including its properties and mill, and will assume all outstanding obligations. Capitalization of the Lucky Boy Consolidated will be raised from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000. The management says work will be resumed shortly in the main property, where two winzes are claimed to be in ore of shipping character, and the mill overhauled and placed in commission as soon as practicable.

Despite the fact that the city of Woodland is installing a new sewer system at an expenditure of $108,000 and installing larger water mains in different parts of the corporate limits at a cost of several thousand dollars, the city council fixed the tax rate for the year 1929-30 at $1.72 per $100, a reduction of 8 cents under the rate of $1.80 for the year 1928-29.

The Roseville City Council has accepted the assessment map for the paving program recently completed on Atlantic street. The cost of the improvement was $47,636. Of this amount the state has agreed to pay $10,000, as Atlantic street is a unit of the highway system, the city will contribute $11,000 and the remainder will be paid by the Southern Pacific Company, whose property adjoins the paving on one side, and the property owners on the other side of the street.

Selection of a site opposite Yuma, on the California side of the Colorado river for erection of a $15,000 joint agricultural department quarantine station and motor vehicle traffic border post, was announced by Lyman M. King of the State Department of Finance. Out-of-state vehicles are entering California at Yuma at an average rate of 250 a day, King said.

Ernest Thran is the new commander of Hope McFall Post No. 248, American Legion at Manteca. The post at its last meeting voted unanimously to change its name from Manteca Post to the one it now bears, honoring a local lad who fell in battle on the French front. Other new officers: E. Doumoulin, first vice commander; Earl Mott, second vice commander; H. Shaffer, adjutant, and G. I. Linn, chaplain.

Demand of the state forest service for drastic action against firebugs brought results again, Deputy Forester W. B. Rider announced, when Fred Alvinee, confessed Humboldt county incendiary, was fined $500, with the alternative of "working it out" in jail in event of failure to pay. Captured in the act of setting a fire, Alvinee confessed to Forest Rangers Parker Hall and Frank E. Thompson that he had set eleven fires in Humboldt county, according to Rider.

The Hotel Clayton at Maywood is to be enlarged, the owner, Joe Somo, adding another story to the structure. The addition will contain eighteen single rooms with private baths and showers.

The Metals Products Company has acquired the Carlisle claims, the Canadian Maple Leaf and the Edison groups on Old Man Mountain in the Meadow Lake section of Nevada county. It is proposed to drive a long tunnel into the mountain, cutting five veins which outcrop. The complex ore will be worked by the flotation process.

GREATEST PASSER CLAIM OF TEMPLE

Wearshing Tops Them All in Aerials, Says Coach.

Capt. Grover "Worm" Wearshing of the Temple university football team is the greatest forward passer in college ranks. In the opinion of Les Haws, backfield coach of the Cherry and White team.

"I think that Wearshing is the best forward passer in college football now," stated Haws. "Grover compares with the great Swede Oberlander, Dartmouth halfback, when it comes to heaving the oval. Wearshing, I think, is a little better at the overhead game than the Swede, who was All-American in 1925. I played with Oberlander and I know his assets when it comes to tossing a pass, but after watching Wearshing last year and in practice I truthfully believe that 'Worm' is the better passer of the two."

In two games last year Wearshing whipped forty-seven passes and forty-two found their mark. Against Providence Wearshing chucked fifteen passes and only one was incomplete. The following week against Schuylkill Grover tossed thirty-two forwards and of that number twenty-eight were complete. Wearshing tosses short and long passes and at both he is an ace.

Echoes of Fielding H. ("Hurricane") Yost resounded distinctly on Michigan's varsity football training field. For the "old man" came out of his shell at the specific request of Coach Harry Kipke, long enough to instruct the linemen on the ways and means of stopping the Notre Dame-Purdue running attack.

Eddie Hughes of Gary, veteran full back and star punter on Indiana university's football team last year, is a welcome newcomer to the fold of Pat Page's squad. Hughes was declared eligible on passing a make-up examination.

Nine football graduates of Stanford university have found coaching jobs in the past three years. Wilton, Lewis, Harder and Robesky of last year's team are now mentors.

Jack and Pete Walters, Marquette university sophomore distance runners from Listowel, Canada, returned to school this fall after some real cross country travel, a 12,000-mile auto jaunt about the United States. Leaving home June 28, the Walters boys and two young friends who have enrolled as freshmen at Marquette, drove through Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Nebraska, where they worked in the harvest fields, and then on to the west coast. They returned to the Middle West just in time to resume their classwork at Marquette. Both brothers were members of the 1928 Canadian Olympic track team.

Two University of Iowa football reserves were lost to the squad through action of the Big Ten eligibility committee, on charges of professionalism. They are John Fuhrman, of Dubuque, guard, and Matt Kelsch of Dougherty, end, both veteran players.

Ken Strong, highest scoring back in the United States in 1928, required almost three games to garner as many points as did Beryl Follet in his first game of the season. Follet is taking Strong's place in the backfield for New York university, and against Vermont had a total of 34 points. In 1928, Strong scored 21 points in opener with Niagara, two in the second, with West Virginia Wesleyan and 16 in the third, with Fordham. Three quarters of the Fordham tilt had passed before his total was as high as Follet's in one game.

The major baseball leagues of the future will transport their teams in airplanes, and may revise their circuits to include one or two Pacific coast cities, believes Billy Evans, general manager of the Cleveland Indians.

Coneh A. N. "Bo" McMillin of the Kansas Aggies has taken away from the freshmen one of the ancient and royal prerogatives of the yearling football player in depriving them of the privilege of scrimmaging against their older brothers of the varsity.

AUTUMN FOOD IDEAS

Pickled sweet red peppers make a delightful garnish for cold meats or salads during the winter. Wash and dry them, then cut into strips, removing seeds carefully. Scald well, then drop into ice water to crisp. Drain and prepare the sirup, using one cupful of sugar to two of vinegar. Put the peppers into sterilized jars, fill to overflowing with the hot sirup and seal.

Do not neglect the late fruits; many good things may be prepared from culis or marred fruit that is perfectly good when made into jelly, marmalades and conserves.

Sour Beef.—Cut one onion into slices and one carrot into strips; add two cupfuls of water, one-half cupful of lemon juice, salt and pepper to taste. Pour over two pounds of a cheap cut of beef and let stand overnight. Drain the meat, dredge with flour, place into hot fat to brown. Put into the oven with one cupful of the liquor in which the meat was soaked. Bake slowly and when half done add more water as needed; add the drained vegetables.

New Salad.—Dissolve in one-half cupful of boiling water one package of lemon gelatin, add a can of tomato soup and pour into a shallow dish to thicken. Cut into oblongs and garnish with three asparagus tips. Serve with mayonnaise dressing over each.

One may serve such a variety of salads with the base of any of the flavored gelatins. Green grapes, celery, a bit of sweet red pepper molded in small cups, turned out on lettuce and garnished with halves of pecans and plenty of good dressing makes a most attractive as well as tasty salad.

Arlington Salad.—Prepare nicely browned toast, cut into oblongs and dip into the water in which asparagus has been cooked. Cut rings from lemon one-third inch wide, put three or four stalks of asparagus through the ring and lay on the toast. Serve very hot with hollandaise, or melted butter poured over the toast.

Loganberry Punch.—Mix the juice of three oranges and two lemons, one quart of water, one cupful of loganberry juice, one banana and one cupful of sugar. Add the banana cut into thin slices, and serve cold.

Creole Dishes.

Gumbo is such a typically southern dish that one does not wish to miss this treat while South.

Chicken Gumbo.—Prepare a chicken as for fricassees, roll in flour and place in a deep pan with three tablespoonfuls of fat; brown nicely, then add a thin slice of ham cut into inch squares; brown lightly and add three cupfuls of thinly sliced okra and one-half cupful of chopped onions. Brown, add two cupfuls of stewed tomatoes, three tablespoonfuls of chopped parsley, half a clove of garlic, one-fourth bay leaf, one-fourth teaspoonful of thyme and six cupfuls of boiling water. Cook slowly until the chicken is tender, then season with file and serve with rice. File is powdered sassafras leaves.

Stuffed Pig's Feet.—Wash a set of feet and scrub well, singe and wash again. Place in a saucepan with one carrot, two onions, three cloves, one fagot of herbs and sufficient boiling water to cover. Cook slowly until tender, then cool in the liquid. Now remove and drain well, wipe perfectly dry. Split open and remove the bones. Mince fine four onions, four stalks of celery and a clove of garlic. Place in a mixing bowl and add one and one-half cupfuls of bread crumbs, two teaspoonfuls of salt, a quarter teaspoonful of cloves, one teaspoonful of paprika, a dash of cayenne, three tablespoonfuls of melted butter and one beaten egg. Mix well, then fill into the feet to replace the bones. Roll in flour, in egg, then in fine crumbs and fry until brown in hot fat. Serve with tartare sauce.

Shrimp Jambolaya.—Mince three onions very fine, add to a saucepan with three tablespoonfuls of butter, cook slowly, letting the onions brown well. Add four medium-sized chopped tomatoes or canned, in equal amount to the onions; one well washed half-cupful of rice, four tablespoonfuls of minced parsley, one-quarter bay leaf, a clove of garlic, half-teaspoonful of chili powder and five cupfuls of boiling water. Bring to a boil, then cook slowly three-quarters of an hour. Now add one can of washed shrimps. Heat, season, and serve.

Snowballs.—Wash one-half cupful of rice and cook in a quart of milk until soft and milk absorbed. Add three-fourths cupful of sugar, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and one-half teaspoonful of nutmeg. Form into balls, placing a tablespoonful of jelly in the center of each ball. Put half a pound of coconut through the food chopper and roll the rice balls in beaten egg white, then in the coconut. Let them dry and serve with crushed fruit or custard sauce.

Hen Paid for Trip

A story of a hen that laid an egg while flying a mile in the air sounds like nature faking, but one at Mays Landing, N. J., did it, although it cannot be said that it flew on its own wings. Instead of that the hen was sitting in a basket carried in an airplane. The hen belongs to young Jack Brogan, to whom was given the opportunity to make a flight. He wanted to take his hen along and it went in a basket and soon a fresh-laid white egg was found in the improvised nest. The boy was more pleased with the record egg-laying than he was with his first ride in an airplane.

The Right Way to Redye Fine Silks

Textile makers always use special dyes for silk or wool. They know that is the best way. The makers of Diamond Dyes are the first to enable home dyers to follow this plan.

Next time you want to dye some of your more valuable articles of silk or wool, try the special Diamond Dyes in the Blue Package. They will give these materials clearer, more brilliant colors than any "all-purpose" dye. And they are just as easy to use as ordinary dyes. Like the white package Diamond Dyes, these dyes contain an abundance of the highest quality anilines. The blue package dyes silk or wool only; the white package dyes, or tints, any material. Either package; 15c, drugstores.

Denver Boy is a Winner

Every mother realizes how important it is to teach children good habits of conduct but many of them fail to realize the importance of teaching their children good bowel habits until the poisons from decaying waste held too long in the system have begun to affect the child's health.

Watch your child and at the first sign of constipation, give him a little California Fig Syrup. Children love its rich, fruity taste and it quickly drives away those distressing ailments, such as headaches, bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness, feverishness, fretfulness, etc. It gives them a hearty appetite, regulates their stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord. For over fifty years, leading physicians have prescribed it for half-sick, bilious, constipated children. More than 4 million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it.

Mrs. C. G. Wilcox, 3855 1/2 Wolf St., Denver, Colorado, says: "My son, Jackie, is a prize winner for health, now, but we had a lot of trouble with him before we found his trouble was constipation and began giving him California Fig Syrup. It fixed him up quick, gave him a good appetite, made him sleep fine and he's been gaining in weight right along since the first few days, taking it."

To avoid inferior imitations of California Fig Syrup, always look for the word "California" on the carton.

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

TEACH STATECRAFT TO YOUTH

By REV. DR. C. F. POTTER, New York Community Church.

THE regional plan for the city of New York has become a political issue, due to the opportunities for enormous graft which it presents. The citizens of New York should see that the execution of the plan be kept from the supervision of professional politicians. When the plan was announced everybody said that it would be wrecked on the rock of politics. When people realized the extent of the scheme, with its elaborate system of transportation, its parks and recreation facilities, they recognized that all political parties would be jealous to get credit for these proposed improvements, and for the opportunity to graft enormous sums.

However, no citizen who is too busy to run for office, or who is keeping out of politics because politics is dirty, has any grounds for complaint if those who are not so fastidious mulct him of some of his profits.

The worst part of it is that the average citizen does not complain when he is held up by the politician and sandbagged by taxes. I have even heard supposedly intelligent citizens say, after some accidental revelation of the graft of some politician, "Oh, well, they are entitled to some graft if they are running the government for us."

The average man is very suspicious of all politicians. He may quote Shakespeare about scurvy politicians with glass eyes, but he thoroughly agrees with him. Politics, itself, is looked upon as a dangerous and rather dirty game. We are still suffering from the Emersonian complex, believing with the literary sage that "politics is a deleterious profession, like some poisonous handicrafts."

The only way to improve New York, politically, is to improve the politicians. Let mothers dedicate their boys to statesmanship as mothers used to devote their brightest boys to the ministry. Let these boys be taught that service to the state is of infinitely more importance than personal profit. When such a race of young men shall seek office for the opportunities that it offers to serve their fellow man, then the words "politician" and "statesman" will once again be synonymous.

INCREASE PURCHASING POWER

By SECRETARY OF LABOR JAMES J. DAVIS.

Troubles of the textile industry, the current history of which in the hitherto rural South has been attended by violence, rioting and death, may be ascribed in part to overproduction. I would urge a liberal wage to increase the buying power of wage-earners generally as a means of improving the market for textiles and other commodities suffering from unfavorable conditions.

In coal, in textiles and in lumber I find that the potential capacity of the mines, factories and lumber operations are generally in excess of the needs of our country. As a consequence, industry in some of these fields faces overdeveloped units, along with the ever-present problem of overproduction, which in turn means irregular employment and unsatisfactory earnings for both management and men.

My experience through life has pretty well proved to me that if we equip the 45,000,000 of gainfully employed people in the United States with ample purchasing power they will buy liberally of the products of our mines, mills and factories. This would lessen overdevelopment and at the same time stimulate business.

I have never yet been able to understand why some of the business men of our country have not discovered that if we give the American wage earner a liberal wage and regular employment he will make all of our industries hum in supplying his needs and desires.

We need to augment the genius for inventing mechanical devices with ways and means of utilizing the men and women displaced by our machines.

CHURCH HAS PUBLIC DUTY

By CANON WILLIAM SHEAFE CHASE, Brooklyn (Episcopal).

If Christ were here now He would do what He did in the temple in Jerusalem. Had Christ not interfered with corrupt politics He would never have been crucified. He openly declared His opinion upon the chief political issue of the day, whether the Jews should pay taxes to the Roman government. He asserted that they should pay the taxes, and thereby antagonized the leaders of the community.

Christ clearly separated church and state, but he asserted His right to rebuke and advise the state. The people tried to make Him king, which they would never have done had He not proved His interest in the moral, social and political welfare of the masses.

In order to demonstrate the unselfishness of the church, and to show that it is willing to lose its life as an institution to save the people from moral degradation as Christ died on the cross, the church must lead in moral practice.

Can anyone who realizes the immorality, robberies, political corruption, murder and graft connected with 32,000 speakeasies in this city imagine that if Christ were here and were asked what He thought about it, that He would refuse to express His convictions because the question was outside the sphere of His activity?

ALLOW JUDGES TO COMMENT

By CHARLES M. HAY, St. Louis Lawyer and Politician.

Whether trial judges should sit merely as umpires in the trial of criminal cases, or should, by comments on the evidence, aid the jury in trying the facts, is a subject for debate. For a long time I favored the denial of the right of comment. I am now of the belief that the exercise of that right better serves the ends of justice. We must never forget that the supreme purpose of every trial is to do justice between the parties thereto. Unless the trial judges have the right of comment, trials too often become primarily a test of the skill of lawyers. Where lies the truth? Which way leads to justice? These are the supreme questions in every trial. Let the judge bring to the aid of the jury his experience, his ability to detect falsehoods, his power to discriminate between true and false issues, his coolness in the storm of conflict.

Breakdowns in justice frequently are due not to methods of procedure, but to cowardly, inefficient or corrupt officials. It is my conviction that for every one man who has gone unwhipped of justice because of defects in our system, ten men have escaped because of a defective administration of the system.

When BABIES are upset

Baby ill and ailments seem twice as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhea—a condition it is always important to check quickly. How would you meet this emergency—tonight? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready? There is nothing that can take the place of this harmless but effective remedy for children; nothing that acts quite the same, or has quite the same comforting effect on them.

For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an everyday aid. Its gentle influence will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. Its mild regulation will help an older child whose tongue is coated because of sluggish bowels. All druggists have Castoria; the genuine bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

Nicotine and Soap Best

There are many ingredients used in contact insecticides but nothing better than a combination of nicotine sulphate and soap has been devised says Nature Magazine. Nicotine sulphate may be purchased from florists and seed houses and is used at the rate of one teaspoonful to a gallon of water together with one ounce of laundry soap or fish oil soap. Various nicotine dusts are also available.

The Mark of Genuine Aspirin..

BAYER ASPIRIN is like an old friend, tried and true. There can never be a satisfactory substitute for either one. Bayer Aspirin is genuine. It is the accepted antidote for pain. Its relief may always be relied on, whether used for the occasional headache, to head-off a cold, or for the more serious aches and pains from neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism or other ailments. It's easy to identify Bayer Aspirin by the Bayer Cross on every tablet, by the name Bayer on the box and the word "genuine" always printed in red.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Mono-aceticacidester of Salicylicacid

When a White Collar Man "Goes Army"

Perhaps he doesn't learn a few things!

DON'T envy a man who "only has to work a typewriter." So we were told by Mr. Solon S. Bloom of 3503 Woodbrook Avenue, Baltimore, Md., whose health began to give way because his work gave him no bodily exercise.

"I decided to get away to a military training camp," says Mr. Bloom, "thinking the rough and tumble with the army would do me good for a month. I asked the doctor what to do about my condition. 'I've seen men, I've known men,' he said. 'I know what they eat, drink, and how they live. I know cathartics, physics, and all the ways men try to keep themselves regular—and the only two that go together well are men and Nujol. Nujol soothes and heals the membranes and expels bodily poisons normally, naturally, easily, so that you are regular as clock-work.'"

That was what Mr. Bloom learned when he left his typewriter and went into the army. If you are like most other people, you too will find that Nujol will make all the difference in the world in the way you feel.

Remember Nujol is not a medicine, for it contains no drugs of any kind. It is simply bodily lubrication that everybody needs.

You can get a bottle of Nujol at any good drug store, in a sealed package, for the price of a couple of good cigars. If you will start today and try it for two weeks you will agree that Nujol is the easy normal way to keep well and make a success out of your life. You will be astonished at the results!

An attorney had just finished a very wretched defense of a young Virginian. His summation was worse, but he painted a vivid picture of Virginia and the poor boy's mother. Suddenly an old gentleman began sobbing. The lawyer went over to him.

"Are you a Virginian, sir?" he asked. "No, young man," he sobbed, "I'm a lawyer."
